HOWARD NIPPERT

PICTURED: Howard Nippert is shown winning the 43rd annual JFK 50 Mile in 5:51:28 at age 40 on Nov. 19, 2005. At the time, it was the second-fastest performance in JFK 50 Mile history, while he set a masters record that still stands two decades later. Nippert, the 21st-place finisher in the 1996 U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials, made his 50-mile debut in 1998, winning the 36th annual JFK 50 Mile in 5:58:41. A perfect 2-for-2 in JFK 50 Mile appearances, Nippert also coached the 2008 JFK 50 Mile champion, Mark Lundblad.

Dear JFK 50 Mile family,

The old adage “records are made to be broken” was truly fitting for the 62nd annual JFK 50 Mile presented by Altra in 2024. Major records fell left and right. Vermont’s David Sinclair hacked over 10 minutes off Hayden Hawks’ 2020 men’s course record, clocking a stunning 5:08:27. Utah’s Rachel Drake shaved over eight minutes off Sarah Biehl’s 2022 women’s course record with a historic 5:57:33, becoming the first female in JFK 50 Mile history to dip under the magical six-hour barrier. 1,120 individuals beat the 13-hour time limit to become official finishers, not only the largest number of finishers in JFK 50 Mile history but also the largest number of finishers for any 50-mile footrace in the U.S.

The 62nd annual JFK 50 Mile was certainly one for the books, but if recent history is any indicator, don’t count on the current marks to have long tenures. Drake’s record will someday be bettered, but like Max White, who first breached the six-hour barrier for the men in 1973, no one else can ever be the first.

Although many of the overall JFK 50 Mile records have been short-lived, the records for the youngest age bracket and one at the other end of the spectrum seemingly appear unbeatable. Karsten Schulz’s 6:16:25 Junior (19-and-under) men’s record has stood unscathed since 1977. Schulz, a high school sensation and later a Southern Illinois University star, placed second overall to champion Ed Ayres with his incredible effort in 1977 when he was just 17 years old. In 2005, Howard Nippert set the still-standing Masters (40-and-over) men’s record at 5:51:28 while winning the race outright at age 40. Maybe, just maybe, after decades in existence, those two venerable age-division marks will finally be challenged.

Whether you are seeking to make history at the front of the pack or attempting to become one of the rare human beings to ever complete a 50-mile footrace — less than one-tenth of one percent of our species has every accomplished the task — good luck!

While “giving your all” over the terrain and distance, challenging your fellow participants and history, please keep in your thoughts the courageous men and women in our military around the globe who are “protecting the freedom of man” and making events like the JFK 50 Mile possible.

Best wishes,

Mike Spinnler
